The screenshot displays the WordPress Gutenberg editor interface. The top navigation bar includes tabs for 'Manage access', '[WordPress.com] Password', 'Edit Post - UNIQUETHREE', '(2) WhatsApp', 'Facebook', and another 'Edit Post - UNIQUETHREE' tab. The address bar shows the URL 'wordpress.com/post/friendship75.wordpress.com/14'. The main editing area has a dark background and contains the following text: 'dependency, which may not always be healthy.', 'Betrayal: In some cases, friends may betray your trust, leading to feelings of hurt and betrayal.', and 'Start writing or type \'/ to insert a block'. Below the text is an illustration of three children wearing party hats. On the right side, the 'Block' panel is visible, showing options for 'Paragraph', 'Color' (with 'Text' and 'Background' sub-options), and 'Typography' (with a 'SIZE' dropdown menu set to 'S'). At the bottom right, the 'Block inserter' menu is open, displaying a grid of block options: 'Paragraph', 'Image' (highlighted with a blue border and a hand cursor), 'Columns', 'Site Logo', 'Paid Content', and 'Gallery'. The bottom left corner of the editor shows the breadcrumb 'Post > Paragraph'.
